Hi JD!

Monday this week was a busy day as I got to do Art, Maths and English. We were making our own graffiti name tags in art by dividing a page into four equal sections to make four different name tags. My favourite of the ones I did was a 3D version in blue and red.

I was off sick on Tuesday but Wednesday was better because we got to do Science. We got to rub ice in our hands until it melted whilst we observed the changes. Then we also did the same with chocolate and tested which type of chocolate melted the quickest. Today is World Book Day, so in assembly there was a runway and we got to show off our costumes - of course, my costume was the best!

Hi Everyone - Happy World Book Day! This year, our theme for World Book Day was reading for pleasure so we did a lot of reading activities in lessons. On Wednesday, Year 6 went on a graffiti walk around Penge. We saw lots of different types of graffiti from different artists such as Aspire and Wondonski. On Thursday, we were not at school as the teachers were on strike. Today is World Book Day and a group of children in my class had a theme called Alice in Wonderland. I was a modern day white rabbit.

Barbie School of Friendship

Thanks to a very kind parent, we now are the proud owners of some Barbie dolls that have been specifically given to schools as a means of helping children learn about empathy and how to express feelings. There are a wide variety of dolls that can be used in different scenarios and role play situations. When children play with dolls, it gives them the opportunity to understand and share the feelings of others - and develop their own feelings of empathy.
